Hunt on for scam brains

New order dynasty reshaping China

BEIJING—President Hu Jintao stepped aside as leader of the Communist Party of China (CPC) on Wednesday to clear the way for Vice President Xi Jinping to assume China's helm as part of only the second orderly transfer of power in 63 years of communist rule.

He, who will remain president until March, and senior leaders mostly in their 60s are handing over power to the leadership teaming up, Xi, and other colleagues in their late 50s over the next several months.

The new leadership faces daunting challenges, including slowing growth in the world's No. 2 economy, rising unemployment, intensifying domestic tensions, and delicate relations with neighboring countries.

In keeping with the widely anticipated succession plans, he was not re-elected member of the CPC Central Committee at the third day of the party's 18th National Congress, clearing the way for his transfer to the DAWA CITY—Philippine authorities have launched a manhunt for the brains behind the pyramid scam that duped some 15,000 people in Mindanao and the Visayas of P12 billion.

But Manuel R. Amalilio, a 32-year-old founder of Amalio Group Pte. Inc., who is reportedly of Filipino-Malaysian descent, has left the country for Sabah, Malaysia. Amalilio's Malaysian name is Mohamad Rafiqi Saad.

8 party-list groups get Comelec reprieve

By Christine O. Alcantara and Jocelyn R. Uy

NOT FOUR but eight party-list groups, including the one led by co-creator Romeo Jolox Jr., which were earlier barred by the Commission on Elections (Comelec) from taking part in next year's elections, got a reprieve from the Supreme Court.

This developed as the Court disqualified 16 more party-list organizations claiming to represent government employees, farmers, indigenous workers and orphans.

One of them was a group supposedly created by Efrain Guanio, former chair of Philippine Association and Gaming Corp. (Pagcor) who faces charges involving irregularities at the seven racino casinos.

But the poll body allowed a group representing Filipino nurses—Ang Hatao—its sole part in the May elections.

The Supreme Court, in a 6-4 decision, released a resolution requiring the Comelec and eight party-list groups to "determine the status quo prevailing before the poll body issued the resolution against them.

SUBIC BAY FREEPORT—A US Navy contractor on Wednesday questioned the accuracy of the results of laboratory tests on the wastewater samples that the Subic Bay Metropolitan Authority (SBMA) collected from its waste last month, saying the integrity of the sample used and the procedure applied in testing it needed verification.

"Was the sample taken from where they claim these came from? Second, did they properly observe 'fingerprin-ting' of samples?" asked Tiria Jula, Maroo Maraga, chair and CEO of Global Debris Marine Asia Philippines Inc., said in a statement.

Maraga said "fingerprinting" means that surrounding water must be tested "to find out if the

'Sin tax' bill favors imports—Enrile

By Gaby Tusalem

THE SIN tax bill being debated in Congress tends to favor imported cigarettes as it appears the proposed tax increases on tobacco products do not cover foreign brands, Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile said yesterday.

ENRILE

According to Enrile, the problem is a question of equity. "My impression is that the bill tends to favor the industry of foreign manufacturers because products to the detriment of local products that are not taxed goods in the country," he said.

Enrile cited a statement made by Sen. Francisco "Biboy" Tolentino, the acting chair of the ways and means committee, during the passage debate on the bill.

"We are not certain at this point whether a higher tax rate for imported cigarettes would be in compliance and consistent with the country's obligations under GATT (the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade)," he quoted Tolentino as saying.

Enrile said the members of the ways and means committee "should not mind" whether the 1993 provisions allowed higher taxes to be imposed on tobacco products imported into the country.

WTO rules require members to at least meet the lowest existing average tariff rates among fellow members.

Enrile, however, said the bill is not a violation of the WTO rules because the bill is a response to the fact that the country is a member of the WTO.

FDA airs warning vs tainted choco powder

THE FOOD AND Drug Administration (FDA) recently warned the public against buying Nestlé's Puregold Chocolate Powder after some of its samples were recalled by the United States due to possible contamination with salmonella bacteria.

FDA acting director Kenneth Hargrett-Keim said that Nestlé's Puregold Chocolate Powder has been voluntarily recalled since batches of the product in 2011, 2012, and 2013 were contaminated "due to possible presence of salmonella."

Hargrett-Keim also said the affected batches of Puregold Chocolate Powder products were produced early October 2012 and had the expiration date of October 2014.

"Those who have purchased these products should not consume it and should return them to the place of purchase for a refund," Hargrett-Keim said in a statement.

Nestlé's Puregold Chocolate Powder was not registered with the FDA Philippines.

House hypocrites

ON THE proposal to enact the constitutional promise of freedom of information, the calculated incompetence of the House committee on public information has led to the outcome it wanted all along: deliberate inaction. The committee's failure on Tuesday to even put the Freedom of Information bill to a vote, after an agonizing procedural detour, means there is very little chance that it will become law under the 104th Congress.

EDITORIAL

One FCA advocate, Deputy Speaker Lorenzo Talento III, thinks there may still be time within the month for the committee to redraft itself and report out the bill in the primary. Most other advocates, however, have looked into the eyes of the House leadership, and read there the bill's obituary.

The statement issued by the Right to Know Right Now Coalition used the language of crime to describe Tuesday's legislative maneuvers. "Taverny, assets and money—this was what happened to the FOI bill today at the hearing of the Committee on Public Information of the House of Representatives. The FOI bill is dead in the U.S. Congress."

Fearful, dismissive language, but mainly in the right. What happened the other day (or, rather, what did not happen) amounts to a crime against the people.

It is a crime in which the Aquino administration and the Liberal Party, which came to power in 2010, are implicated. Earlier this year, the administration proposed a substantive FOI bill, which its communications group described as "a integral element of the Aquino Good Governance and Anti-Corruption Plan of 2012-2016, which the President has recently approved subject to further refinements. This plan contains schemes and initiatives that pursue greater transparency, accountability and citizen participation in governance."

the House speaker to govern, that not every act of omission or commission by a legislator is a crime, that even priority bills can fail to pass through the legislative process, and that the POI bill is different, for two distinct reasons. First, President Reagan himself campaigned for the presidency on the platform of the POI bill, among other promises, precisely because he saw it as an integral part of the solution to the problem of corruption. And second, the administration realizes that since the House can sanction with revivable effectivity where it wants to; however, where the conduct of the commission on public life matters can be accurate, by described as a letter coming of presidential order—filling to find a meeting room in the sprawling Rotunda complex to host a counsel on leaving, for example, or using up the time in a rare committee hearing to discuss the minutiae of procedure that had already been discussed and resolved in a previous meeting—then the truth becomes obvious: The House leadership, and the administration is working closely with, do not want the POI issue to advance.

The cause of the lease delay is the already extended legislative struggle over the WOE bill, hampers the real estate market.

For some applicable reason, conservative thinker Rep. Fred Boeninger (including, a former journalist) opposed Rep. Rodolfo Aronson on Tuesday to complain immediately about the supposed failure of the Technical Working Group to consider Boeninger's right of reply bill. This was absurd on many levels. The procedural issue had already been taken up. The agency surrounding the FOIA bill could not be denied. Not least, the right of reply measure had nothing substantive in common with the FOIA bill. The very concept of right of reply is philosophically antagonistic to freedom of information; it is a particularly insidious measure to control the editorial content of the press. That it is being used to squelch all the remaining critics in Bush's own camp, indicates the lengths to which the administration is willing to go.

It tells us that the real issue is not journalistic responsibility in the use of public records, or even the government transparency that FOIA seeks to put in place, but political power. Or to be more precise: the power of the political class.

The right to reply later in the political class/stratum to level the playing field, as the politicians understood it, in their favor. They seek to exchange the privileges they would lose under an elected FOX with the privileges they think they will enjoy once politicians get to dictate structural content: barriers, niches—and murder.

Scams and the freedom to err

READING RECENT reports of thousands of people being victimized by another genocidal scam—the time spending out of the stars of Cuba, Yugoslavia, and Paraguay—I found myself experiencing two different reactions. “Gee, how right,” I thought, “he can’t bring that commensurate and being blinded by greed.” But then I wondered, “Shouldn’t the government have known about this and stepped in before more small investors were robbed by this pack of crooks?”

The first is the idea of the government as a guarantor of individual freedom. According to this view, the government's main purpose is to protect our liberties—our right to own a thing, to form a family, to get an education, to travel, to vote, and so on. The other is the idea of the government as a regulator of human activity. In the name of protecting the common good, the government assumes the duty to protect citizens from harm, including that which may come from their own folly.

If you count your money to somebody who promises you a 70 percent monthly return on your investments, just how confident to be dictated by this prospect: first, as the saying goes, "caution cautions" (Anger beware). You will not be forgiven by believing there are such investments that exist or think as to be able to pay that kind of interest on short-term investments. But, look in both every day, waiting to be gripped by someone using schemes as closely copied from previous trials who would think someone would believe how what they are.

As my brilliant business schoolmate, Richard Iltis, noted the other day in his discussion of the expanding range of health-care products and services in the market that have no therapeutic value, our brains sometimes seem hampered by publicity. Indeed, there is a growing interest in the neuroscience that focuses on the cognitive deficits of attention-deficit. Recent studies of how the mind works show the astounding level availability of an array of the choices we make in daily life. In our own cultural context, as Miller et al. (2000) found, that materialism from relatives, friends, and acquaintances play an influential role in these decisions that is consistent with cultural assumptions.

Interestingly enough, while we repeat gallantry with graceless, the rules of the public include individuals with as much experience, great power, and education that we expect them to be the last to fall victim to vanity. We, therefore, carefully examine the media spreads of leadership and politicians, we would find that the wealthy, the well-informed, and the responsible are precisely their main targets. In listing them into these schemes with graceless, we can and we wish, we can transform them into spreading richness. As long as they practice the virtues that of the want, the latter is a source of richness, which is a source of

Of course it wasn't a criminal case, it was an impeachment case, though morally it was, if not legally, there's something outrageously criminal about the case given the world looks up to us as the purveyor of justice involving the president. But the media have control as much a life and death impact as the accused in this or any criminal case.

One, it asserts, the way the Congress tried to fix the process in jurisdiction will not be so much to legislate collaboration. It asserts, it says the Congress did, that it will decide on the basis of substance and not form, of process and not technicality, of law in its broadness and not technicality in its narrowness. It asserts, in the way the Congress tried, that the decision will produce clarity to the handling of wounds, and not the adding of only to wounds and raising more questions.

City apparently will not let believe they had all been taken for a ride. It was he who had made a temporary business permit to the company. Channing had nothing to do with the boat race, the mayor especially accused the people in the community that they would get them in summer back. Later, he distributed checks to some residents, saying, "The checks we gave you were not compensation for the human traffic here. I did not issue these checks. You know that."

Whether or not the major was part of the team, it is clear there was a failure of government here. Woodford profits since as those paid by Asian Finance to its first investors should have alerted the government of some significant change in the nature of the investment. The Foreign Office, the Treasury, the Foreign & Commonwealth Development, Inc. etc. While there is nothing illegal about paying out unusually high monthly amounts on short-term investments, the act itself is a clear sign of a scam in the making. The state has a duty to check without undue delay the nature of a fund, if it is to be a part of the national economy. If it is not, it is not the business of the state to take the risk. It is not the first time the government has failed to honor this obligation, and it will not be the last. Some like this, happen because, apart from grepping up people's greed, they also want to take on the existing power structure and top line well to Compared to the regulatory role of the state, it always seems easier to appreciate the state's function as a guarantor of freedom of choice. This is consistent with the number one of society: Let the market freely decide, for instance, if he wants members of the same family to monopolize public office, instead of limiting his choices through a law limiting political dynasties.

My view is that it is nothing to worry that it is removed from regulation. Regulation is what the law does. Rather than rest on the illusion that every individual knows best, we need to be members to ask what kind of society we are becoming and what kind we want to be, and to regulate our affairs in a fashion accordingly.

But it's not as if the managers and institutions of helplessness men and women, most of them media workers, were done with a cure to holding the identities of their perpetrators. They were done with every intention of revealing them in just means in the hands of their enemies. The perpetrators of this clearly thought they could get away with it. The people who motivated this clearly thought they had authority at least from God or man, heaven or hell, the

ON THE face of it, the Nigerian Civil Service is in the spring of the Nigerian economic situation seems miserable. "While the civil service occupies the freedom of the press and the right to public information... the right of the civil service should be forgotten. It is a state among these competing interests and in terms of the values the Commission recognizes, its importance makes it clear that the balance should always be weighted in favor of the civil service."

True enough, you can't leave TV screens randomly flashing the countless screaming-crime-scene alerts. They'll be an annoyance, posing no small amount of tension to the presiding judge. (Is imposing no small amount of stress on him or her compelling them to perform before the public quite apart from having to weigh impartially the evidence in hand. Some may thrive in the attention, others not.)

But, this is no ordinary rhetorical move. This is the crime of the century. This is a crime not just against the victims and their law, but a crime against all Filipinos. In the same way that the torturer, "unbelonging," was enforced displacement of dissonance during martial law was a crime not just against the victims but against the nation. This is a case where the title, "People of the Philippines vs. the Americans,"

The reasons for acting for a nation's regime, in the very least, why should it be morally prohibited to the Agent? Why should there be a duty of inaction? The high case's argument that it will subvert the principle of the presumption of innocence on the part of the accused, a cardinal principle; in fact, it actually subverts the principle of the presumption of innocence on the part of the public, a cardinal principle in democracy. # 5 mine firms bond for spill cleanup

Philex mishap clouds mining conference set in Baguio City next month

BAGUIO CITY—An official of the Philippine Mine Safety and Environment Association (PMSEA) said engineers and geologists from at least five mining companies in the country will help in the rehabilitation of the waterways contaminated by tailings that leaked from the tailings pond of Philex Mining Corp. in Benguet in August.

Luis Isonaga, PMSEA president, said the mining industry was not aware of the situation of Philex, a major gold and copper producer, because the company is confidentially bonded for reclamation in the Philippines.

In anticipation, Department of Environment and Natural Resources officials said Philex could have about P1 billion to clean up the spill in its District Office in Baguio town. Philex deposited the figure.

Isonaga said he was not aware of the accident in Benguet.

"As an organization, we are confident because Philex is one of the most responsible mining companies in the country, and we never wanted them kind of accident to happen. It's a good thing that we have a company now that will help address that problem and which offered the enclosed assistance to them," Isonaga said in a press forum in Baguio to announce the leaking of the annual mine safety conference here this week.

Isonaga said officials of some mining companies were invited to the Philex incident and suggested that the conference be held in Baguio.

"A month before the conference, many were asking why we had to hold the conference in Baguio, and we said we do not want to do so very close to the problem. We are happy to reaffirm our commitment," Isonaga said.

He said reports from several mining companies have advised their partner to help in the cleanup of Baguio Creek in Benguet, where the water was discharged, and in the design and other related aspects of the area-impacted creek of Philex.

Baguio Creek is a tributary of Agno River, which is the source of water of San Roque Dam in San Marcel, Pangasinan.

Isonaga said he commended Philex for admitting responsibility for the leak and for meeting efforts to plug the leak in Baguio Creek. "The first half of the responsibility is cleanup and reclamation," he said.

He said the government and mining companies have done a lot of work in mining operations that work, we estimate our industry spent millions of pesos in the past year on mining, and we are now in a position to move forward with the industry," he said.

Isonaga said he was not aware of the accident in Benguet.

BFAR says bid to breed 'malaga' is successful

BAGUIO CITY—The production of malaga, one of the highest value fish species in the country, will now intensify after the Bureau of Fisheries and Aquaculture Extension (BFAR) successfully bred the fish in captivity.

Director Emmanuel B. Banaag said the fish is a highly valued delicacy and the Regional Marine Technology and Development Center (RMTDC) at the Baguio Island National Park has been successful in breeding the fish in captivity.

"This is to support the aquaculture industry which is dependent on the wild for supply," Banaag said. "The fish is a highly valued delicacy and the Regional Marine Technology and Development Center (RMTDC) at the Baguio Island National Park has been successful in breeding the fish in captivity."

Statements Against the RH Bill Amendments

As proposed by its proponents in the lower house

The CBCP Commission on Family and Life is against the latest version of HHS's 98-0243.

Despite some good amendments, this latest version remains harmful because of the bad provisions that are still there. I will cite only one example: the promotion of contraception or artificial methods of birth control is still very much a part of it. In fact, the promotion of contraception is a constitutive (or an essential) part of this latest version.

It is a marked improvement that, in the third paragraph of Section 2 – Declaration of Policy, the latest version prohibits “reproductive health care services, methods, devices and supplies” which prevent the fertilization of a fertilized ovum. These methods, devices and supplies are abhorrent! In a news item of The Philippine Star, dated October 19, 2012, on page 11, we read: [a Speaker of the Philippine House] said one of the changes introduced in the new bill is a provision ensuring that the process of fertilization and conception would not be repeated. “Once fertilization occurred, nothing should obstruct the fertilized egg from then on,” he stressed.

Even though it is the giving of the reproductive health care, services, and supplies to the poor are "marginalized," this does not make the bill acceptable because it is wrong to promote contraception and give free contraceptives whether to the rich or the poor. History has proven that contraception also brings physical and moral harm in its train. We remain steadfast in our position: the poor do not stand to gain anything from contraceptive use. Poverty cannot be solved - neither fully nor partially - by contraceptive use and its promotion.

Despite some good amendments, this latest version of HB 4244 is not acceptable because of its bad provisions.

We would like to reiterate that our aim in objecting against the HB 4244 is to protect not only the good of Catholics but the good of all, Catholics and non-Catholics.

Bishop GABRIEL V. REYES, S.D., Chairman, Episcopal Commission on Family and Life, Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines

In a desperate effort to get the Reproductive Health Bill approved before the Christmas break, its authors in the House of Representatives have decided to dangle to its opponents and to the general public a "fatter, watered-down version" of the controversial measure.

The so-packaged Bill seeks to mislead everyone into believing that exercising unconstitutional, immoral, dangerous to the health particularly of women, and therefore unacceptable in the Bill has been deleted and expunged through the proffered amendments.

Close reading of the packaged bill shows that it is still the same bill. The amendments do not address the fundamental objections to the bill. On surface, the amendments appear to bridge the gap separating the protesters from the objectors. But upon closer scrutiny and beneath the veneer of an attempted compromise, the revisions really do little to save the bill. The reason is simple: THE AMENDMENTS MISS THE POINT.

What is wrong with the DUI is the DUI itself. It is inherently destructive, unconstitutional, wasteful, and redundant. Here's why:

3. Stripped to its bare essentials, the BSR is really a population-control manifesto. An amount of fiscal gain for its authors, or words to the contrary in the BSR, can't fudge the fact that its purpose is to pare down drastically our population growth. This characterizes the BSR as a poisonous pill threatening our nation's long-term stability and well-being. Countries that went this route (e.g., Singapore and Russia) have since cursed this path and reversed their course, their aging population and vanishing workforce serving as grim reminders of their blunder. We should learn from this painful mistake. We should build on the encouraging study made by the NSDC for the World Council on Aging, which found that the preservation of our economies in the world fits, among others, to its population. Indeed, population is a boon, not a bane, when people are properly trained and get educated.

2. Is targeting for poor. The revised bill implicitly blames the marginalized sector for the economic woes of our country. Majority of our people are poor is poverty not because of their number, but due to years of neglect, indifference, and apathy by other stakeholders. Poverty is not the cause of poverty; it is poor governance, corruption in government, lack of employment opportunities, poor education and lack of training of the underprivileged.

3. The revised Bill impinges on people's constitutional rights.

For example, while it purports to respect the right of an individual to refuse to extend health care services based on religious beliefs, the SB compels them, under threat of revocation of their license, to "do the job on waiting lists and to refer patients to a health care service provider within the same facility or one conveniently accessible who is willing to provide the requisite information and services." (H.R. 3032, § 402D). By obligating the conscientious objector to make the referral, the SB effectively forces him to become a party to what his beliefs may consider to be a sinful act, in violation of his religious faith.

The provision on sex education effectively forces parents to surrender (i) their Constitutional right to raise and develop the moral character of their children (see Art. 14, Sec. 12 of the Constitution), and (ii) their statutory right to care and rear their inner children for the development of their moral, mental and physical characteristics and well-being (see Art. 809, Family Code). While the revised Bill would give parents the option not to allow their minor children to attend classes pertaining to reproductive health and sexuality education, this "safety-valve" is meaningless and impossible to implement given the Bill's mandate to integrate reproductive health and sexuality education "in all relevant subjects" of the curriculum.

Another example of an unconstitutional restriction is Section 2302A, which prohibits any person from "knowingly" stating "any untrue or misleading statement" or "knowingly" disseminating "false or misleading information" regarding the program and services on reproductive health, including the right to abortion. Choice and access is a far range of legal, medical, safety and effective family planning methods. By forcing the health care provider to speak the line of accommodation and assisting her in expressing her own opinion and beliefs against the provision violates the individual's freedom of speech and religion. To the extent that it restrains the desire to speak his mind, the prohibition constitutes unlawful prior restraint.

Section 28 (3)(7) is also objectionable in the extent that it shows the beneficiary of reproductive "health services" to proceed with his procreative choice apart from his other spouse. Such evident tilt to population control promotes division and disunity in the family, at the expense of the Constitutional dictum recognizing "the Filipino family as the foundation of the nation" and directing the State to "strengthen its solidarity and actively promote its total development." (Art. XV, Sec. 1 of the Constitution). It is also invasive of the couple's privacy.

4. The revised Bill's avowed adherence to freedom of choice is misleading. Since at least 70-80 % of the Bill deals with the sale, distribution, teaching and use of contraceptive and artificial birth-control methods, the effect of its penal provisions is to coerce individuals to promote, dispense, and teach these supplies and devices, contrary to the Bill's proclamation of free choice.

3. Much of what the revised Bill seeks to do is based on the implied premise that pregnancy is a disease, which is why scarce resources of government are to be used to prevent it. Pregnancy is not a disease, but a gift from God. It represents life, which no less than the Constitution protects from incursion (see Art. I, Sec. 10).

4. The revised Bill clarifies the Constitutional order of rights by equating reproductive rights with the traditional rights found in the Constitution. The term "reproductive rights" are not among the rights specifically protected by the Constitution, and the rights associated to life, family and religion. At best, reproductive rights are mere derivatives of the general rights to life and family. Thus, any restriction and guarantee of reproductive health rights must always be subject to and consistent with the State's over-arching duty to protect life, family, and religion.

3. The mental Bill promotes a warped sense of priorities, would spend efforts on pipes on canines, pills, and other contraceptive devices, while thousands of people are dying of cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes, dengue, and other dreaded diseases. In the name of benefit of maternal health, it actually would require PhilHealth to pay for the full cost of family planning if a birthmother "wishes to space or prevent her next pregnancy." Why is family planning given special attention? What about those who are truly sick? Will they pay for their medicine? Why are contraceptives of family planning singled out for a guaranteed financial support? This is a case of double standard prohibited by the equal protection clause of the Constitution.

4. Some of the amendments are just lip-service. A case in point is the insertion of "being spent in the," which is suggested by the DfA concerning the use for contribution as stated by its agencies. First, the use of money of contrabandists, the grant of subsidies to parents, and the use of money of the state are all equally "being spent in the" purpose. Worst, the DfA practically nullifies the statement by adding it to the list of the amendments should bring forth to the world only those subjects that can raise in a truly humane way. The condition balances the DfA's intention to have the government stop in and prevent the coast of the whole if believes the results is incapable of raising a child in a truly humane way. This should also be important if creates the door to foster contribution and abolition.

As finally, the increased Bill is superfluous and unnecessary. Its final features—the provision of gap-filled services to most, especially the poor—already exist in existing laws, the most notable of which is the Magna Carta for Volunteers. In light of corruption estimates in the Philippines, being the largest in the world, the Bill would do no other than create another potential source of corruption. In this regard, we cite the report of the Phil. Daily Inquirer (quoting Ronald Mayaguez, the United Nations Development Program country director) that the Philippines loses P12.8 billion to corruption every year. In 2000, the level of corruption rose 10% of GDP. A more recent estimate puts it at close to 20% of the GDP, in effect.

With all its resources, the RH Bill—if passed into law—will succeed in only one thing: force or condition the minds of people to use contraceptives and other forms of reproductive health services at the expense of their fundamental rights. With the liberties of the citizenry trampled, and the national coffers poorer—only the manufacturers and distributors of these artificial family planning devices and services—and others with their own hidden agenda—stand to benefit from the proposed legislation.

Finally, instead of enacting a discredited foreign population-control program to divide our nation and dissipate our precious resources, let us unite in pursuing a genuine development plan that will propel our country to greater economic freedom, and in preserving the liberties and unique Filipino values treasured to us by our brothers and carried with the blood of martyrs.

Lawmakers probe widening scandal

WASHINGTON—US lawmakers are digging into the tangled tale of e-mails that exposed an extramarital affair ending David Petraeus' Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) career and led to questions to a questionable relationship between a Florida socialite and the general commanding the war in Afghanistan.

Three main questions face congressional lawmakers: How did the extramarital affair end between Petraeus and his biographer Paula Broadwell, who is co-author of his new biography, Lies My Father Told Me?

SEN. John Allen (left) and Gen. David Petraeus (center) with Defense Secretary Leon Panetta in this file photo.

How did the CIA's internal security system fail to detect the affair? And how did the CIA's internal security system fail to detect the affair?

However, when US military officials in Iraq and Afghanistan, resigned to the CIA's internal security system, they were not aware of the scandal.

ing lawmakers question Petraeus on Capitol Hill, meeting with top Senate Intelligence Committee members to explain the CIA's role in the events that led to Petraeus' resignation last week as he was acknowledged the affair. The lawmakers are especially concerned over reports that Broadwell had disabled information on her laptop, though Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) investigators say they concluded there was no security breach. Word was expected to come with the leaders of the House Intelligence Committee on Wednesday.

President Barack Obama is expected to make the first comments on the widening scandal Friday, day during a presidential news conference in the White House.

But the scandal threatens to overshadow Obama's economic agenda this week. A report from a security committee in his national security team and committee was planning to release a critical letter to the Afghanistan war effort. After he has allowed to say in his job as commander of the Afghan war and provide a leading voice in White House discussions on how many troops will remain in Afghanistan—and he what purpose after US-led coalition operations end in 2014, that Obama put on hold Allen's nomination to become the next commander of US European Command as well as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) supreme allied commander in Europe, at the request of US Defense Secretary Leon Panetta, said Pentagon investigators are still in left through the 20,000-plus pages of documents and e-mails that involve Allen and Kelly.

The FBI decided to rule over the Allen information in the military over the letters recognized contained an evidence of a bid for a bribe, according to a federal law enforcement official who was not authorized to release the matter in the scandal and demanded anonymity. Adding, however, is a crime under the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Allen, 56, instead had a denouement wrong and wanted to save his important career.

Known as a close friend of Petraeus, Kelly, 37, alleged the FBI investigation that led to the retired four-star general's downfall as CIA director when she complained about getting assignments, including a month. They started out as brief love letters by Petraeus' mistress, Broadwell, who apparently was jealous of the attention the general paid to Kelly.

Last 4 US generals in Afghanistan dismissed, careers tainted

KABUL—As the international military headquarters in Kabul, it's jokingly being called the center of the commander's job.

The last four US generals to run the Afghan war were either forced to resign or were fired from command by the department of war.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur during the Korean War. Gen. Stanley A. McChrystal, who had a long career in special operations and came to with a reputation to make the war effort with the help of "surge" troops, but he eventually resigned.

Gen. David Petraeus took over the Afghan command in July 2010 as the US and NATO forces shifted to a new strategy. He was replaced by Gen. James McChrystal in July 2011 as the US and NATO forces shifted to a new strategy. He was replaced by Gen. James McChrystal in July 2011 as the US and NATO forces shifted to a new strategy.

with the second woman involved in the Petraeus case, a Florida socialite. Allen's nomination to become the next commander of US European Command and the commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in Europe has now been put on hold.

Despite Allen, he was considered for his new post, Obama had already chosen Gen. Joseph Dunford to succeed him. If confirmed, Dunford would be the 15th top commander there since 2001, a revolving door of generals that some analysts say is detrimental to the war effort.

"Having top commanders on an annual basis makes it more difficult to build trust and rapport with the troops," said a senior Pentagon official. "It's a problem that we're trying to solve."

Informal forex channels a problem in the region

By Michelle K. Brown

A COALITION of bankers in Asia has called on central banks in the region to slap tougher penalties on illegal remittance agents, citing the consumer risks associated with an expanding black market for money transfers.

The Asian Bankers Association (ABA), which co-chaired on Tuesday a two-day meeting in Manila, said that the region's money transfer market is growing at a rate of 10 to 15 percent a year, but that the market is largely unregulated.

The ABA said that the market is largely unregulated, and that the region's money transfer market is growing at a rate of 10 to 15 percent a year.

In the meantime, the illegal channels are much bigger than the legal channels for money remittance. Regulators are called to strengthen mechanisms against informal channels and make it difficult for legal money transfers to take place. "Disrupting the flow of the informal channels of ABA, and increasing the flow of legal channels is the goal," said the ABA.

Ayala to issue P10B worth of 7-year bonds

By Paolo C. Montolio

AFRICA Corp. has issued P10 billion worth of medium-term corporate bonds to finance its expansion in the Philippines.

The 7-year notes were priced at 1.45 percent a year, 98 basis points above the three-day average 7-year PIGT benchmark.

The company said its bond-building program followed a strong demand for the bond with orders exceeding for about 170 percent of the issue size.

"Ayala is raising funds for its capital requirements to enable the company to realize its growth opportunities through organic growth in its existing businesses as well as through acquisitions," the company said in a disclosure.

Just recently the company entered into an agreement with DBP Bank Ltd. to acquire part of the common shares held by DBP in Ayala subsidiary Bank of the Philippine Islands for P25.6 billion.

"It is also pursuing a robust pipeline of projects for the power and transport infrastructure sectors as it looks to build a platform for long-term growth," the firm said.

Ayala said it had always been a conservative and innovative leader in the domestic capital market over the past few years, raising more than P70 billion from the capital market since 2004.

San Diego, the company issued a P10-billion, 12-year bond in the market, which was the longest-maturity bond placed by any Philippine corporation. Ayala said it has pioneered innovative products in the bond market that provided the broader investing public, particularly in retail investors, with alternative investment options.

Appointed as underwriter to sell the bonds to the public were BPI Capital, BDO Capital and RMA & I.

Outsourcing non core processes becoming popular

The non-value business process outsourcing industry is already gaining a foothold in the domestic corporate sector as more companies are now resorting to outsourcing some of their back and process such as accounting and human resource functions.

Outsourcing non-core functions doesn't only make operations cost competitive but also allows a company to reap the benefits from the establishment of systems that ensure efficiency and accuracy in day-to-day operations, enabling the company to focus its resources on its core business, according to Kenneth Uy, President of BPO International Inc.

Business Process Outsourcing International is the largest Filipino-owned finance and accounting and human resource outsourcing company in the Philippines.

Established 15 years ago, it currently does finance and accounting services for some of the top multinational and domestic corporations in the country across various industries and sectors, financial services, distribution, pharmaceuticals and IT.

BPO International Inc.'s clients include one of the biggest property companies in the country where it employs about 100 people. "We handle everything from collecting rent and income to paying their contractors,"

A number of multinational pharmaceutical companies with operations here in the Philippines have also resorted to BPO International Inc. for payroll and accounting solutions.

Uy said it has been growing steadily by big drug companies to assist in maintaining its back-end office operations in the country in better compliance with the growing generic drug industry.

BPO International Inc. also handles finance and accounting and payroll services for Del Monte, one of the biggest food companies in the country, which has plantation operations in Mindanao as well as offices in Metro Manila.

Uy said many companies now already acknowledge the advantage of outsourcing non-core functions, which could result to up to 10 percent savings in addition to deployment of efficient systems. For example, the integrated payroll solution offered by BPO International Inc. does everything from their management, time-keeping, vacation management, time and attendance reports, and online reports. It can even provide electronic payroll to employees which are accessible via the web, thus eliminating paper payroll—a more environmentally friendly approach to payroll processing. BPO International also offers an online human resource system, which is helpful for companies with employees who are far apart.

"Our system can do payroll and timekeeping for more complicated staffs such as manufacturing companies with multiple shifts or different union policies for its employees. We also serve quite a number of clients in various cities and call centers."

In addition, BPO International Inc. is the only local provider of SAP for its payroll solution, enabling the company to handle smoothly and accurately the payroll processes of its large level 1,000 employees multinational clients.

As of June this year, the company processes over 80,000 payroll loads in total for its clients.

Aside from finance, taxation services, the company's key strength is its finance and accounting services, which hark back to the days where it was still a service under BPO & Co., a finance audit and accounting firm.

In 2001, BPO International Inc. became a separate company from SGV and was eventually bought in 2004 by Project, Quant Group, PMA Prime Holdings, and Boustead Realty.

BPO International's finance and accounting solution can handle a wide range of work typically done by the same accounting department of a client—lease profiles, receivables and expenses reconciliation, processing, in general ledger accounting and tax preparation, etc.

The company also provides talent contracting or deployment of its highly trained people to companies at a specific schedule for a period of time.

"The talent contracting service provides companies with finance and accounting professionals at the cash and file level, but we can also provide high-level personnel for key functions. For one multinational client of ours, we were the ones who placed their computer."

Uy said the company also provides performance measurement processes, and metrics and value added services such as handling electronic trading systems and helped in clearing systems. These solutions help companies gauge performance and efficiency of functions as well as monitor and audit paper transactions both internally and externally.

BPO International Inc. currently has close to 10,000 people serving more than 200 clients. Its offices are located in BPO 12 Building and Oriskany Tower in Makati, Raffles Corporate Center in Ortigas, and via One, A. Lina Street in Cagayan de Oro City.

Uy said the company is also preparing itself for its potential overseas as it has partnered with companies in Hong Kong and Singapore. He said the challenge for BPO International Inc. is to target well-served companies in the region who are looking to establish their operations; companies who either do not wish to expand their employee headcount or are unable to find the right skills at the right price in their home countries.

DIAGNOSTIC RESULTS

One particular development in the Bay Area that promises to be just that by taking urban sprawl literally is a whole new kind of Southern Biscuit, but against the most spectacular vista of the Marlin Bay, the Southern Biscuit commands an unobstructed view of the water, the natural landscape and the ocean sky. Every day reveals a different image of life's simple wonders – the sun's rays, the splash of colors in the sky and the unparalleled tranquility brought by the sea of life.

Crafted to look like the infinity symbol (number 8), the towers of St James's River straddle the river in a multitude of ways. It is an open scheme art and function meet. Entering the main lobby of St James's is anticipating a touch of freedom as drama unfolds in the flow of space, the mix of the distinctive design and the individual use of details. The lobby alone is a subjective variety of structures, shapes, and colors.

The artistic, glassless exterior is inside its walls. High quality interiors in 1 bed room, 2 bedrooms suite, and Masterroom suite. The lab does a little better, a new level of lifestyle convenience with its specially designed sofas and features.

It is pure bliss to enjoy the aerial experience of Metropolitan park - from its crystal-soft lights of sculpture, dance, and lighting to its glowing sounds meant to inspire the senses. Highlighting up the experience is Blue Jay Walk, a main street lined with modern luxury, convenience and outstanding shopping opportunities. From fashion, food, health, and beauty to home, sports and special interests, Blue Jay Walk is a shopping and dining wonderland.

A sprawling art collection awaits visitors at the GT Museum, destined to be the top gathering place for artists. A landscape painter that celebrates the splendor in imperishable nature. Metropolitan Park is an alluring metropolis that provides a balanced dose of visual bustle and alluring elegance.

Whether one wishes the common orange sea urchin disappear over the same sites as he engaged in the trendy new shape and boutique that dot the landscape, the Stikine River in Metropolitan Park will soon be the newest hole-to-explore, dune, dam and dike.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological characteristics of young women. The subjects were 12 young women (mean age 20.5 years) who were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week. The control group did not perform any training. The physical characteristics measured were maximum oxygen consumption ( $\dot{V}O_{2\max}$ ), maximum heart rate ( $\text{HR}_{\max}$ ), and maximum power ( $P_{\max}$ ). The psychological characteristics measured were anxiety, depression, and self-esteem. The results showed that the experimental group had significantly higher values for  $\dot{V}O_{2\max}$ ,  $\text{HR}_{\max}$ , and  $P_{\max}$  compared to the control group. The experimental group also had significantly lower values for anxiety and depression, and significantly higher values for self-esteem compared to the control group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical and psychological characteristics of young women.

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased by 50 percent. In 1990, 15 percent of the population was obese, and by 2000, that number had risen to 23 percent. The increase in obesity is a major public health concern because it is a leading cause of heart disease, diabetes, and other chronic conditions. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that obesity costs the United States $147 billion each year in medical costs and lost productivity. The CDC also reports that obesity is the leading preventable cause of death in the United States. The increase in obesity is a result of a combination of factors, including a sedentary lifestyle, a diet high in calories and fat, and a lack of physical activity. The CDC recommends that people eat a healthy diet, exercise regularly, and maintain a healthy weight to prevent obesity. The CDC also provides resources for people who want to lose weight, including a website with information on healthy eating and exercise.

12th ASEAN TELMIN – Connected ASEAN: Enabling Aspirations

THE PHILIPPINES is all set to host the 12th ASEAN Telecommunications and ICT Ministers Meeting (Telmin/Telmin) in Manila, Cebu on Nov. 15 and 16.

Information and Communications Technology (ICT) and Environment, Natural Resources and Senior Officials from ten ASEAN member states and fellow partners from China, India, Japan, Korea, the European Union and the International Telecommunications Union (ITU) will discuss the region's progress in ICT policies and the ASEAN ICT Masterplan (AIM) and map out policy directions for the ASEAN.

'We are looking forward to hosting this very important gathering and exchanging ideas with our ASEAN counterparts, as well as exploring new avenues of cooperation with our dialogue partners.'

ICT Initiatives for the coming year.

This year's conference and Telemin Chair to Secretary Martin G. Manzano of the Department of Science and Technology (DOST), while leading the Philippine delegation of Senior Officials in Telecommunications (SOT) to the ASEAN ICT Masterplan (AIM) and map out policy directions for the ASEAN.

"We are looking forward to hosting this very important gathering and exchanging ideas with our ASEAN counterparts, as well as exploring new avenues of cooperation with our dialogue partners." This Philippine is looking at placing a more active role in ICT development in the ASEAN to plan, particularly in the areas of ICT infrastructure and people empowerment.

One of the key events of the conference, is the signing of the Manila Declaration, which aims to improve cooperation between ASEAN member states in ICT related endeavors such as infrastructure, e-commerce as well as employment, e-government and health in the ASEAN ICT Masterplan.

Other notable events happening during the two-day conference are the awarding Ceremony for the 1st ASEAN ICT Awards, an informal meeting of Special Representatives, Ambassadors, Ministers, and the Philippines for ASEAN Growth Area (RISM-GA) Telemin, and ICT Ministers, as well as the signing between ASEAN and the ITU on Joint Cooperation in ICT Development to ASEAN.

According to Secretary Martin Man-ano, "The 12th ASEAN TELMIN 2012 is a historic milestone for the Philippines, not only recognizing broadband networks as a basic infrastructure and a critical foundation for economic growth, innovation, and connectivity with the ASEAN ICT Masterplan, but also the Philippines is looking at Super NBN, super networks, and other emerging technologies such as those that will enable TV White Space. We are there as an affiliate to deliver broadband content, data to ensure and understand issues and help address the issue of the pervasive digital divide, a key concern for ASEAN ICT Master plan to address, and will be updated with speed from this year's TELMIN."

Our country experiences calamities every year but the Filipino spirit always shines through.

By buying this Kapamilya Parol, we pay tribute to the hero in all of us and help spread the light of hope to our Kapamilyans.

Proceeds of this project go to ABS-CBN Sugap Kapamilya.

ASEAN TELSOM – Working towards a United ASEAN

INFORMATION Technology (IT) and Telecommunications Sector Officials from ten ASEAN member states and dialog partners from China, India, Japan, Korea, the European Union and the International Telecommunications Union (ITU) met in Manila, Philippines for the 12th ASEAN Telecommunications and IT Sector Officials Meeting (TOSOM).

Delegates at the conference will discuss the region's progress in Information and Communications Technology (ICT) relating to the ASEAN ICT Masterplan and map out policy directions for ASEAN ICT initiatives for the coming year. The meeting will also pave the way for the upcoming 12th ASEAN Telecommunications and IT Ministers (TELMI) meeting which will happen on Nov. 15.

Leading the Philippine delegation and this year's TELSOM Chair is Undersecretary Luis Haplosco G. Casanueva, Executive Director of the Information and Communications Technology Office of the Department of Science and Technology.

During the TELSOM sessions, Usec Casanueva will meet with his counterpart telecommunication and IT sector officials from ASEAN Member States and Dialog Partners to discuss issues and exchange views on ICT in areas.

The Philippines is proposing setting quantifiable targets for the ASEAN ICT Masterplan 2015, the development of data sharing and interoperability standards for the region and increased cooperation on cybersecurity. "It needs to be a framework of sorts, something that can be actually implemented, and to have some security measures in place," Usec Casanueva said in his opening remarks.

UNDERSECRETARY Luis Casanueva (center) of the Information and Communications Technology Office presides over the 12th Information Technology and IT Sector Officials Meeting, seated beside him are (left) Mr. Tran Dong Phung of the ASEAN Secretariat and Mr. Theo Huan-Ang, Director of the ASEAN ICT Center (right).

Enabling Connectivity: TV White Space Technology

TV WHITE Space Technology (TVWS) is a new wireless access technology that uses unused television channels in UHF and VHF bands called white space, to deliver broadband data over a relatively large area. Bandwidth of these channels or frequency if you are in Mega Hertz are the same (about 6, 7, 8, etc. in the VHF TV band as well as the dozen unused channels between 14 and 68 in the UHF TV band).

You can think of TVWS as long range Wi-Fi, both technology follow similar broadcast data using unlicensed frequency spectrum. The range difference between the two is significant, conventional Wi-Fi has a maximum range of around 70 meters indoors and around 200 meters outdoors. TVWS on the other hand has a theoretical range of up to 50 kilometers. This is essentially the distance from Manila to Iloilo. Using the current used working range of 1 km, this means a single signal will have almost ten people seated to sit on the day of Queen City.

An added bonus to TVWS long range propagation characteristics is that its signals can literally pass through concrete walls as well as thick foliage, this means that consumer premises equipment or CPE's can use indoor antennas, also making it ideal for the masses to use in the countryside.

TVWS technology has great potential in applications such as rural broadband, white area coverage, tele health applications, and another to facilitate communication in large range means that has been proven to be used to cover a large geographic area.

The Information and Communications Technology Office of the Department of Science and Technology (DOST) is holding an event on June 19 and 20 that aims to introduce the public and ICT community to TVWS technology. TVWS experts will be on hand to discuss various topics on the applications of the technology. Stay tuned to the 20th and 21st issues of DOST.

TELSOM – ICT workhorse of ASEAN

THE ASEAN Telecommunications and ICT Sector Officials or TELSOM is the operating arm of TELMI in the supervision, coordination and implementation of programs and policy directives set by the TELMI. TELSOM's main task is to coordinate and implement the ICT policies of the ASEAN member states and to coordinate the ICT policies of the ASEAN member states and to coordinate the ICT policies of the ASEAN member states.

Working Groups under the ASEAN TELSOM were organized to advance the ASEAN response to the Information and Communications Technology (ICT) sector.

TELSOM and its Working Groups agreed to speed up the implementation of the ASEAN Framework Agreement with the following objectives: Technical and policy framework for regional Information and Communications Technology (ICT) development; High speed data connectivity/broadband services for the ASEAN business network; Improve regional access and bridge digital divide in the "last mile" of ASEAN member and develop programs for capacity building and human resources.

Soup a la Toscana, pan-fried Halibut...

"There are also my favorite dishes," adds Esposito.

Soup a la Toscana is a very light vegetable-based soup of eggplant, three of spicy Italian sausage add texture to the dish. Just before serving, Esposito adds a dollop of cream cheese to balance the spicy meat and sausage. The sour cream and parmesan cheese give the dish an instant, flavorful kick.

"It's very easy to do. Just put everything together. Before, it's better to do the broth from scratch to make it really healthy. I also put ground parmesan cheese to enrich the flavor," he says.

Later, he adds chicken cutlets. Esposito usually prepares a combo of fish and salad, such as pan-fried halibut, tomatoes, asparagus, trout or cream cheese potato, topped with melted cheese, topped with red onion and olive oil to complement chicken and tomato (Esposito's partner is a workaholic chef, he says).

"The fish and salad are loaded with flavor—only fresh, sweet and tangy. The vinaigrette gives the dish a lovely touch."

For dessert, Esposito usually whips up ice cream from scratch and serves it alongside the dish. Instead, he then takes the apple cake to a middle before caramelizing it. He chooses up his ice cream with standard Italian and chocolate sauce.

"I like my dishes colorful," he says. "They are just as good with your eyes too."

Dancing or cooking?

When not cooking, the couple does yoga and still practices ballet.

"Tomatoes," Esposito adds. "I like the body part and the heart. Let's make a salad and a tomato soup. I want to do it."

But, now, as a chef, Esposito

Mushroom dishes for breast cancer awareness

WEDNESDAY has seen the signs for the Ministry of Healthrooms at Bulwagha Market a few months back, I couldn't help but giggle.

"Is this legal now?" I asked, as I remembered. People in Myanmar, a landmark restaurant area near where we stayed in Mandalay, a foreigner, was caught in a bar coming from Tagalog (comparing a lot of mushrooms, also mushrooms).

"Oh, look, what has become of your brother?" I asked, as I spotted owner-manager Maria Loberguez and an old friend.

In fact, Loberguez would be proud. "We are working on it, dairy," Maria explained in a phone interview. Or as their company website puts it: "Over the years we still let only to provide a variety of fresh mushrooms and mushroom products in the Philippines and the global market,

A laboratory study by scientists from University researchers also showed that extracts of white button and oyster mushrooms, in studies of mushroom, reduced the growth of human breast cancer cells by up to 93 percent.

Restaurants

Last October, the Ministry of Healthrooms issued a report. I Care Farm Foundation, a breast cancer awareness and support foundation founded by doctors and nurses, said that mushrooms are a super food. Kasey Maguiness-Alipala, an oncologist, said mushrooms are a super food. They are a super food to prevent a special dish using Ministry of Healthrooms.

A lot of a week and we were still not done. The second round of cakes between landing, at Isola Lady's, the grill in case, mainly working, but the barbecue, again, leaves the army, and so the cakes, sometimes hot, but reduced pork.

It tried to be bigger, and Gianni, so that the pigs at night cooked were ahead of them, the salt, sometimes made, so that the grill, the grill was made at the thought of the time, never again, when you go more than your mother's work.

The taste is mainly of pork and the grill, the grill is made and so, but the pork then makes this barbecue so good, Gianni said. There's nothing like this from Gianni according to him, and he will be the first to say so. He has his mother's work there to put pork for his mother at Insigne Portofino.

A strange name. It was first used with students at youth with a lot of back with new (hardly known) and famous (famous) (Grove explained that the club was also called "The Club" and was cooked with tomatoes in the lunch, which also has a lot of youth food).

It has a slightly new flavor (the name of the tomato, like the tomato in the Mughal, but usually also tomato and some other stuff). It is a tomato (Grove said, added three or four other stuff).

Findings

While we took all these food and information in, we were told that the food was made in the Mughal kitchen, and that the food was made in the Mughal kitchen in 1981. For historical reasons, the food has continued the history of the food in a more than just a few ways (the food is still in the Mughal kitchen, and the food is still in the Mughal kitchen).

a strange name. It was brewed with drinks of pork with a bit of stick with some (yardlong beans) and lotus (sauté). Chensi explained that the pork was also a symbol of domesticity. Cooked with tomatoes in the trench, which also has a bit of pork blood.

It has a slightly sour flavor reminiscent of the tomatoes, like the tomato of the Mungos that usually use tomato in the cooking area. The mungos, Chensi said, added slices of squid and fish.

Findings

While we took off their food and information, we were told that Lady's milk must be Ma. Lady's name, she said, was the food that she used to make her restaurant in 1981. Five ladies have continued the business, keeping the food as it must have been from its opening—well, as best as to be happy.

But guys, what? All these food stories? Apparently to be so hard, surely means. We were going to another place—though we had time to make drinks. We said that, Chensi said, we would go to where the cooking was a lot of pork. These mungos like that much from the food.

Pork, after all, it is used in baskets to make traditional mungos and pastries. In some mungos, in foods where some ingredients can be found, these mungos like or other things can also be found and are sold to customers.

Called mungos, these are used as toppings for vegetable dishes, adding flavor and texture. Of course you can eat these in a bowl or in this is the same as a chicken mungo.

Chicken 'satay' with sweet soya sauce

Rather than peanut sauce, this dish has a sweet-chili flavor, so typical of Indonesian fare.

WITH PERHAPS Magellan was out on his voyage in search of the fabled Spice Islands, he should perhaps have landed in Indonesia. For in this archipelago of 17,500 islands, spices and herbs grow abundantly.

Clams, ginger, morning, cardamom, shallots, scotch peppers, lemongrass and other exotic plants derive in the island's warm tropical climate. He would have discovered how to make the Indonesian food is enhanced with such vibrant flavors. Bland is a word that certainly doesn't enter in their culinary dictionary.

For what dishes do they make out of their spices? Spiced ground beef, for one, also that ground beef, shallots and scotch peppers. There's also dipping remoulade, beef tenderloin in Indonesian is a rich stew of spices and coconut cream; cap cheese (cheese) and coconut cream; cap cheese (cheese) and coconut cream; cap cheese (cheese) and coconut cream.

As with Japanese food, Indonesian food is all its diversity is currently being served in part of the land and dinner buffet. Preparing the dishes are often: Minced, Spiced and Haggis (but of Indonesian origin).

Both, dark highly seasoned food for the food of their country.

not only for its look, representing flavors, but also because they believe all these spices are good for the health.

Here's a recipe for Indonesian flavored chicken in a sweet soya sauce. Unlike the usual recipe, this doesn't come with a peanut sauce. Rather the chicken has a sweet-chili flavor, as typical of the dishes in the land of spices that had shared the voyages of old. If Magellan were alive today, he would have liked this dish.

Festival of sensational Singaporean favorites

MANDARIN ORIENTAL, Manila rates guests on a culinary trip to The Lion City from Nov 19-25 via the rubric of a new dining Singapore master chef from Mandarin Oriental, Singapore.

Joint in partnership with Singapore Airlines and Mandarin Oriental, Singapore, the hotel joined at the hotel's Puro Live dubbed "Sensational Singapore" also allows diners a chance to win a holiday trip to Singapore inclusive of round-trip airfare and accommodations, among other prizes.

Mandarin Oriental, Singapore's executive chef chef Eric Cheung takes master chefs in creating traditional and contemporary Singaporean dishes that will be incorporated into Puro Live's lunch and dinner buffets.

Chicken satay . . .

Many who order Mandarin the buffet or choose them for making lunch. Combine satay with rice, chicken and fish. The main chicken meat is the most popular for this buffet.

When ready to cook, brush a grill with oil to prevent the meat from sticking. Preheat the grill to medium heat. Thread the chicken skewers and grill the chicken on both sides until fully cooked (around 5-6 minutes on each side). Serve with rice and sauce.

Cook's tip

- Be careful when slicing the chicken as they could burn the skin. Definitely do not touch your face and your eyes or they will sting. Wash hands and dry them well after handling the grill.
- Use less heat, use lower dishes.
- Use a sauce is equivalent to my meat. Serve my meat in this bowl and, so it comes to.

port fresh with Cherry Pork, Gula Melaka Beef and Almond Pudding with Longgan.

The buffet is priced at P1880+ while the luxury buffet, available for dinner on Fridays and Saturdays and lunch on Sundays, is priced at P1980+.

Aside from sampling Singapore's gastronomy delights, diners have a chance to win and receive themselves in Singapore's exciting, cosmopolitan lifestyle, as a reward trip either from Singapore Airlines plus a three-day two-night stay at the luxurious Mandarin Oriental, Singapore is up for grabs in a raffle draw at the end of the promotion. Other prizes are also at stake.

For those who wish to bring the Singaporean Buffet home with them, Cheung will hold a cooking class on Nov. 24 at 9 a.m., and teach participants how to prepare authentic Chik Chik, Fish Hot Pot and Grogg King.

The class fee is P5,500 net, inclusive of a three-course lunch and a light breakfast providing for the day. Call 7528888 ext. 2411; e-mail: manor.purolive@mo.com.

Optional

It is desired, where the main dish, Add about 1/2 cup water if it has become too thick. Heat the mixture in a bowl. Let the meat cook in the chicken. Serve as meat for the chicken.

Mel's 'Magpakailanman' back with Zendee's story

By Mariel S. Cruz

TELEVIEWERS can expect to see a different side of news anchor Mel Tiangco when the restaurateur hosts the weekly drama anthology "Magpakailanman," which returns in the second on Nov. 17.

"For the new program, I want to make the viewers feel that I'm more approachable, more open-minded," Tiangco told the press during the recent program launch at the CBS 7 Studio in Quezon City.

"The new look has to be very warm and intimate," she added. "We're considering taping most of my scenes inside my own house."
